

WRITING SERVO SECTORS TO A DISC DRIVE USING OFFSET HEADS

5

Abstract of the Disclosure

A disc drive including rotatable disc surface adjacent a positionable read/write head having a write element offset from a read element in one direction across the rotatable disc surface from an outer diameter of the disc surface to an inner diameter of the disc surface for writing head position control fields by steps for controlling writing of second head position control fields on a second portion of the disc surface while reading head position control fields written on a first portion of the disc surface, using the read element, to augment position-control of the write element being controlled by a position information writing apparatus, while writing the second head position control field to the second portion of the disc surface.

10

15